

WHAT IF FEWER AMERICANS died from dumb gun negligence?

What if next year saw fewer big toes blown to oblivion?

Fewer toddlers handling loaded guns? What if one kid didn't die for a dumb reason? That would be good, right?

It's not a trick question. This is as controversial as puppies and ice cream. Even one less dead loved one is something we can all agree on. Right, responsible gunowner? Right, left-leaning senator? Right, Mom?

We're thinking America is ready to stop shooting itself in the foot. We're thinking everyone can pause the debate for a sec and pay attention to one simple thing. Somewhere out there is an unlocked, loaded gun. Don't we all want to reach it before a 3-year-old does?
